

Legal Advice

When everything is going according to plan it is easy to forget some of the benefits provided to clubs through the ASA insurance package. This brief article is a reminder of the legal advice and expenses insurance policy which is automatically provided to all clubs.

The officials of an ASA club are entitled to use a 24 hour legal advice helpline which provides assistance by phone on all legal problem areas. The help line also provides advice to ensure the correct procedures are followed if a dispute arises which may lead to a claim under this policy.

The policy covers a wide range of situations including the defence of club disputes and legal defence cover.

Clubs requiring legal advice should first contact the Ash Cox of the ASA Legal department at insurance.query@swimming.org to obtain the DAS helpline number and a reference number to be given to the DAS helpline when calling.
